Scout Training For American Boys

A piece that more men become Scout leaders, in order that more boys might benefit from Scout training was made by Warren Lewis E. Lawes of Sing Sing prison. Scouting is valuable, he declared, because it gives boys things to do in which they take a real interest. He illustrated by several stories of lawless boys who had quickly changed upon finding healthful activities that naturally interested them. "No boy should be given up as hopeless," he said, "until he has failed in something in which he has shown real interest."

Massive Architectural Style Chosen as Most Becoming Modern Nature New Hotel

After long deliberation and perusal of blueprints, one plan was finally chosen embodying all the features of a massive scale and still keeping with a design of sufficient distinctiveness to preserve the modernism of construction in the interior layout, as devised by Frank Donald and the architect, C. Spencer of Grande Prairie.

Bricks made locally from Grande Prairie clay were chosen as the most suited medium for permanence and weather-defying qualities and were used around the two-story building's complete exterior. Huge panels of gleaming plate glass along the 100-foot front are supported by massive columns of imported deep red tapestry face brick and lend an interesting buttressed effect to the building's facade.

Spire fills adorn the wide front. Only occasional touches to relieve the architectural mass of pillars and a few gracefully executed ornaments to soothe the plain squareness of the top story.

For both builder and architect sought a design distinctive and more definitely modern than any seen in the north to house an interior even more modern. The general layout, said Mr. Spencer, is somewhat similar to that of the popular travellers' rendezvous at St. Paul, though Grande Prairie's new hotel is larger and better appointed and has incorporated in its diversified services the choice of most recent developments, mechanical and decorative, being offered in new forms almost daily in this age of rapid scientific advancement.

The main floor was built three feet above the grade for dryness in all seasons on lots already situated terrain elevated enough to suffer less from heavy spring thaws than many other parts of town. In compliance with the town's by-law anticipating considerable widening of the main business street, the hotel was built six feet from the present sidewalk line with many other buildings erected in recent years. Over both hotel's own sidewalk and town's roads rose out a huge marquee with the Donald Hotel inscribed in glass panels all around. It lit up at night with colored lights.

The six foot gap between the building and sidewalk was appropriately filled with a wide cement sidewalk fronting the shops and hotel proper, the second concrete walk built in Grande Prairie. The first piece of cement walk was laid three years ago in the front yard of J. M. Crumney's large modern home when it was completed.

Though not a full cellar, a large and deep concrete one was built under the rear part of the building giving ample room for the large steam heating plant, well and water pressure tanks and system, automatic motors for the electrical refrigerator installations and fountain, for store rooms and work benches, and the many things which in the passage of time in a hotel's life become discarded to make room for more modernized versions of hotel service.

Then lumber occupied the builder's and architect's interest. For structural and flooring needs, thousands of feet of local lumber were ordered. From forests of spruce and jackpine in the Burnt Hills — which incidentally lend their character to an interesting horizon line in the wide lake-dotted valley spoken as one of the finest scenic spots when viewed from the Richmond Hill Club and Country Club and from other elevations in this district—timbermen hauled many trees to be cut into thousands of board feet by sawyers in district lumber mills.

Tall stands of fir, for which British Columbia has gained such repute, yielded fine enduring hardwoods for the floors in the cabaret-hallroom and in Mrs. Donald's luxurious three-room suite. This wood was also fashioned in smart single panel doors for all rooms and in window sashes and frames for the many windows which supply plentiful daylight.

Bill Remple, contractor of Grande Prairie, had charge of over forty district men employed on carpentry work, while choice B. C. fir was shaped to measure for doors, windows, etc., largely by Jim Roland, foreman of the factory and in the local yard of the Frontier Lumber Company. A quantity of oak and other hardwoods for special purposes was supplied by the Hayward Lumber Company of Edmonton.

This not only is its construction fully up to standard, but its strength and rigidity also help to carry out the grandiose influence of modernism as characteristic of a beautifully proportioned and executed interior. Rare Color Treatments of Greatest Artist of All Time Adapted to Modern Art In Richly Artistic Interior

Nine Pastel Shades Blend Harmoniously In Double- Cove Ceilings and Murals

A young man filled brushes with tender care as a canvas in France's province of Italy, over four centuries ago, about the same time that Christopher Columbus finished his sailing jaunt of two months over the Atlantic to discover America by landing at Cuba.

The young man still painted as a pupil of a celebrated artist of his day. So eager was his interest and quick his grasp on principles and reproduction of art that he had completed the ranks of great artists of his period, not only as painter but also as sculptor, architect and poet. It was the era of the Renaissance period when architecture and art and furniture too, were the target for a thorough renovation of styles and decoration by the artists. So perfectly proportioned and gracefully artistic were the creations of the many artists of the period that their works still stand, after these centuries, models for aspiring artists of today.

The young Italian, who stood his age, Michael Angelo, took the lead among renowned architects of his day by creating many innovations, with the resulting effect of a single harmonious unit in the design and decoration of buildings in his charge. The mastery over the grand and terrible has never been equalled, as testified by examples of his art still standing, pointing out among others the magnificent paintings and architecture in St. Peter's at Rome. Other works which still command the admiration of everyone are his noted sculptures executed with a correctness of design and knowledge of anatomy which has not been attained by other artists.

Too busy was his life to stop to consider the far-reaching influence his treatments of color and proportion would bear in the future, much less in distant countries. Twelve years before he started on St. Peter's, his undying art was destined to influence future building in America, even in the Peace River country, when another sailor, Jacques Cartier, led the way to Canada's shores and tried to explain in all friendliness what how-de-do meant to the Indians along the St. Lawrence.

The Atlantic has since carried many more sailors between nations, sailors bringing ideas and returning with some, until art has been adapted and conformed to suit a new standard of living in a new age of speed and tastes. And eventually Michael Angelo's pastel colorings were modified to bring about the most original and modern decorating treatment and thought to effect desired by Mr. and Mrs. Donald in the new Donald Hotel.

Out of their wish grew the exact effort planned. Beautiful classic proportions of color and weight, and distribution of the many pastel shades intrigued enough to hold interest for a long time, yet restful enough to make an effort throughout inviting and pleasing to guests.

Minute details of furnishings decoration and arrangement were carefully supervised by the hosts of Grande Prairie's new hotel with many, many of color throughout each room, and again throughout the entire building as the key to the completely finished building.

Tall squares of pale glass fairly glow with sunlight in the hundred-fifty foot, five entrance and lead the eye to the large marquee above the front entrance. Then Mr. and Mrs. Donald enter through glass paneled doors and are ushered in to the lobby, a hall of harmonious colors and a distinct departure in design with its paneled walls broken at intervals with pilasters supporting the cove beams on the ceiling.

Heliotrope walls support large panels of grey between subtly projecting pilasters which lose themselves in the continuous cove both along the walls and beams. Grey is repeated in the cove's recess and again in the frame for the open white ceiling. Gently meeting the large rectangular areas in the panel fields are small decorative designs of people seen through a conventional design of rich gold vapor in floral pattern and edged with a fine line of yellow, leading to continuous line with the mural pattern.

In the lobby, as in all other large public rooms on this mode floor, the perspective and depth happily preserved in the color treatment are such as to make the vision want to linger longer, possibly more creditable still before the completion of the smart new Lumine vertical tubes of lighting to characterize pillars and panels and the every freestanding floor covering.

Meditations by the hour would be pleasantly spent on the deeply cushioned and cushioned chairs of red leather before the ruddy glow of figure and feet coals in the chairs. When the massive white crystal-bellied bowl also hangs in the ever-seen, full room, the hands of fine-pointed shadows on the walls. The facts being that the harmonizing, parquetry design of warm brown and tan in the modern designed floor covering.

Of course, as hotels go, there is an office and registration counter. Such offices will be treated efficiently and methodically over a large plate glass counter exhibiting placards and notices, set against the entrance.

If Mr. and Mrs. Donald choose to go to their room, they will be led up the white stairs at the far left and then walk up a deep-set, soundless rug, or the floor through the through the far doorway at the right, one of the two stunningly designed Roman arched doorways, then enter the hall-way leading to the ladies' beer parlor, or the men's, or the commercial travellers' sample room, the small private telephone room. The arched doorway leads from the lobby to Mr. Donald's spacious office, convenient for the desk clerk.

Actually cooling and restful as the pastel color murals are, the full charm and most dominating effect of the modernized mural use of colors as suggested in the modern Renaissance by the contracting decorator, A. C. Bailey of Edmonton, and his assistants, H. O. Bjerke and O. Overland of Grande Prairie, is more fully noted in the men's palm garden, beer parlor, if you want it that way.

Nine colors were used in this tri-beamed room running north and south and the full depth of ninety feet, with walls paneled in similar treatment to the lobby, though the key color altered to suit more colors and the double cove ceiling and beams.

More restful still is the gentle splash of falling water from fine sprays into the long, semi-circular rocky stream half-way down the rustic fountain. Unconsciously many gold-fall here, slide through the water, twist lithely or idle under the cascades of water sliding down the miniature mountain from which jets of water constantly flow.

The same large patterned floor covering of distinctive parquetry design used in important rooms in the east, even section of the building was laid in the men's and ladies palm gardens.

Immediate access to the ladies' palm garden for quick service is allowed by a swinging door next to the bar serving department, the ladies' beer parlor.

Here and There

Great Britain will greatly augment her fire-fighting force as a precaution against incendiary air attacks, the House of Commons was informed.

The British labor minister decided to appoint a parliamentary committee to study a plan for making paid vacations mandatory for all British salaried workers.

Captain James McIlroy plans to fly from King George V's coronation in May from London to New York, in a plane to be built specially for him. It was reported in London.

Bonito Masaditi, ex-Minister of War, has ordered a great mobilization of more than 1,000 men within the next few months, an official communiqué announced.

Windsor, Ontario, forwarded to Windsor, England, $250 toward erection of a memorial to King George V in the English town. More than 17,000 citizens contributed to the donation.

Assurance of peace is needed for a lasting revival of world trade, Sir George Dalrymple, British economist and international affairs expert, said in an address before the Montreal Canadian Club.

Stephen Walter of Hyde, Isle of Wight, has bought a new pair of boots as he enters his 100th birthday. He walks near his home every day. Once he was bullock of the university racing "lighter" of Oxford.

Tearing down an old log house on his Brookdale farm near London, Ontario, Russell Hardie found a coin minted just 100 years ago, a half penny bank token issued by the province of Lower Canada.

A general labor shortage in the United States during 1910 was regarded as "highly probable" by the national industrial conference board, provided business activity continues increasing at a rate equal to that maintained between 1933 and 1936.

Noble Order of Froth Blowers To Be Served By Expert Roller Skater In Speedy Style In the Palm Gardens

"Two, please!"

"Coming right up," is the usual answer, but it will be much more so as Mr. Emil Johnson, skater extraordinary on the silver blades and smooth-rolling skates, performs inside and outside loops up and down the avenues of palm and between tables flanked sides to serve refreshing beverages with all speed at the new Donald Hotel.

So stated Mr. Donald, a broad grin on his face. He added, "The men's palm garden is so long, and it is not risking any patron's beer going flat before it reaches him."

The roller skating expert, he said, has the highest recommendation of Mr. Tom Wilson, manager of the Capitol Theatre, Edmonton, for his speed, agility and versatility on roller skates.

Yes, Mr. Johnson will also serve the ladies, and may even put on a few special steps from his large repertoire of trick figures for their benefit. In the ladies' private palm garden, which is attractively paneled and furnished with deep cushioned bamboo easy chairs deeply cushioned in red leather finish. The regular bartenders, smartly uniformed, undoubtedly will take their cue from this exponent of fast service. It is the first time in the history of this part of the Peace that a ladies' private refreshment parlor serving beer has been opened.

Throughout both men's and ladies' palm gardens the pastel shades used in the decoration of panels and beamed ceilings inject a particular atmosphere of coolness and comfort, made more interesting by the stately palms along the walls and the fascinating effect created by the placement of tubular Luminaire lighting fixtures. Here, as in every other room of the hotel, Mr. Donald has incorporated every possible feature for maximum comfort, service and pleasure of patrons, from the ornamental effects supplied by the rustic fountains to the many scientific instruments and equipment to maintain the huge room and every type of refreshment at ideal recommended temperatures.

Behind the orderly bar of fine hardwood topped by a large canopy, at the far end of two wide aisles separating three rows of some 30 modernistic metal tables, is an array of scientific dials and instruments fitted above a long table of gleaming copper that has special compartments for quick and sanitary washing, rinsing and drying of glasses.

Many fine copper pipes of various sizes find their way from the meters, dials and chromium-plated taps to special machines inside the refrigerating room, which is completely lined with cork. A large radiator-styled unit starts and stops, maintaining the desired point of refrigeration, as directed by an unusually shaped thermometer from the reaction of the large compressor in the basement which forces radiation of cold air throughout the storage room. Another motor behind the many cases and legs in this room regulates the constant even pressure to the drawing taps on the serving bar, while just above the taps and against the bar room wall is a large glass cabinet where small amounts of bottled beverages are kept at the right temperature by forced refrigerating air circulating in the cold room. A heavily insulated massive door, readily opened for bringing in goods, keeps the forced circulation refrigerating air within its ordered sphere of activity.

Steam System Is Adequate to Heat Entire Building

In every phase of the new hotel's construction and installation was planned and carried out to the most scrupulous detail by Frank Donald himself, none took up his attention more than the arrangement which would best provide heating that could be depended upon for the solid comfort of guests, even through the most frigid seasons the North "enjoys."

The answer to this problem, one that confronts in some measure all sponsors of buildings and homes in the North, was adequately met by placing the largest radiators along all walls which confine the hotel. Long sectional radiators are hung at close intervals against all outside walls throughout the many large public rooms of the main floor and will furnish a barrier of protection which knights of the road and district residents will thoroughly appreciate after facing biting winter winds on the road.

This method of heating from the farthest points of a building towards the inside also insures a more even temperature throughout, backed, Alex. Erick of Edmonton, plumbing and steam heating contractor on this project. Other efficient radiators in all rooms of the main floor and in each modern guest room, controlled by his or her personal pleasure, are fed from a huge six-section Gurney low pressure steam boiler, ample for complete irradiation of the entire system during periods of most popular use.

Return water from the irradiation circuit is received in a large return steam trap connected to the heating system and is then pumped back into the boilers by a centrifugal pump, which is automatically started when the return water reaches a pre-set level.

And so the cycle of perfect service goes on, with clock-like precision, for the well-being of the guests of this modern palace of comfort in an empire where the world's grain kings live and grow their crops of prize-winning cereals.

Mr. Lucy Duhman, who has just completed 50 years as caretaker at St. Peter's church, Wiltshire, England, has during that time also been clerk, bell ringer, organist, stoker and response leader at funerals.

Hotel's Own Well Supplies Water Of Rare Quality

A patron's wish is a command in a modern institution such as the new Donald Hotel. For instance, a slight twist of the faucet on any of the up-to-the-minute basins provided in every room or in any of the private and general bathrooms, and presently a whole retinue of servants supply an abundance of hot or cold water from the hotel's own deep well.

The servants who provide this service are highly efficient automata, some who, in their various shapes and forms of steel, corrugated and cast iron, keep ceaseless vigil on the pressure of the hot and cold water, and set in motion an automatic Myers deep well pressure pump to renew the 40-foot pressure constantly maintained in two 500-gallon tanks when the gauges indicate a lowered water level.

Of the most up-to-date type procurable, the pump, as well as all materials used in the best, that money can buy," stated John Oszust of Beaver Lodge, pioneer well driller of the Peace, who added that while the hardpan encountered in the last three feet was the most difficult drilling of any well in the North in his 35 years experience, this hardpan strata formed a natural ceiling of hard rock 200 feet below the ground and would prevent any danger of cave-in.

So hard was this rock formation that Mr. Oszust and his son, Alex, could only drill through about eight inches a day during the last four days. Previous to that, delay in drilling was caused by two veins of quicksand, but at last, exactly two weeks from the start on the well, a 2½-inch piece of galvanized casing, matching the galvanized conduit which runs the whole 200 feet to the automatic pump, was dropped into place.

Through this most sanitary tubular type of well, which the driller states is absolutely airtight, and which prevents anything of a foreign nature to enter the water supply, 500 gallons of water were drawn through the pump each hour on a constant run of 17 hours as a trial test. Throughout the run the well delivered an unvarying amount and showed no sign of decreased volume, a surety that the water supply is large and adequate for a long time to come.

Volume plus good flavor and refreshing quality are attributes which guests will enjoy. The water from the well is reputed to have a much smaller percentage of soda than that ordinarily encountered in wells of the district.

All the finer features for servicing the complicated web of water pipes throughout the hotel, about interrupting service in any parts of the building, are incorporated along with other details of efficient operation.

Pipe, delicate furniture should not be kept near windows, radiators, or any place where sudden changes in humidity and temperature occur.

WOMEN PILOTS WOULD FLY CORONATION FILMS TO AMERICA

A special trans-Atlantic airplane flight is being planned in order to hasten delivery to North American motion-picture theatres of Coronation films.

Negotiations are proceeding with Amy Molison, Beryl Markham and other distinguished pilots, to undertake a flight to New York, according to Sir Gordon Craig, General Manager of the company which has been granted exclusive rights to film the coronation on May 12 (British Movietone News).

Copies of the films will also be despatched to North America on the dirigible Hindenburg, scheduled to leave Frankfurt, Germany, late on the day of the coronation. They will be flown to Frankfurt.

Mrs. M. Linton and Mrs. Markham, both of whom have already conquered the North Atlantic by air, have indicated their willingness to attempt the flight, it was stated.

Canada will receive its copies of the films from New York by fast service.

Has your tablecloth a sketch of the London Tower Bridge on it? If it has, then send it to the City of London Corporation. When the plans for the bridge were being considered Sir Horace Jones, the city architect, sketched his idea on a blotting pad. Later in the day he went to a banquet and elaborated the idea by sketching it on the tablecloth. The blotting pad which bears the first sketch of Tower Bridge is now preserved in the Guildhall. The tablecloth, too, was preserved, though what has become of it is a mystery. Now the corporation is looking for a banquet in 1877.

Paramount Thought To Guests' Comfort Brought About Many Innovations

Commercial travellers and district residents will be certain to comment on the modern appointments and appearance of the new Donald Hotel, as some privileged to visit through it in the past few weeks have done and, in fact, added that it compared favorably with many of the better hotels in cities and was equaled by few, if any, hotels in the country.

Fully knowing that the hotel guest, whether traveller or visitor from the district, is principally interested in a comfortable mattress and spring and convenience and warmth of the room, Mr. Donald obtained mattresses renowned for true comfort and adjusted beds and springs, intimating that price alone was a minor consideration and would have to be sacrificed to the main objective in his mind—comfort—happily achieved along with modern luxuries as typified in all furnishings thoughtfully provided in each of the many bedrooms.

Whether traveller or not, the guest will enjoy the convenience for typing or writing those bumper day's orders or letters home on a right-sized walnut table with matching chair in each room. In complete union with the modernistic trend of hotel rooms is the smart dresser of rich, hued hardwood in two-tone design, topped by a Venetian mirror of high quality glass, a like mirror being conveniently placed over the latest type of wash basin.

Artistic central fixtures supply light which, in the modern terms of intimacy would amount, if measured, to plenty of footcandles, for fullest general use or reading comfort in the comfortably cushioned big chair.

For those who like to read in bed a special wall lamp is readily accessible at the head of the bed and is plugged into a wall plug specially made of bakelite at an eastern factory for the contracting, electricians, Deacon & Burgess. Their reason for this specially-made wall plug was to accommodate the room switch and two outlets operating independently for the bed lamp and to allow placing in an electric razor or radio.

Everything to induce sound restful sleep is secured in the comforts and soundproofing sounds provided in the many rooms, further precautions having been taken by the installation of an elaborate fire alarm system, with three stations in readily accessible parts of the building.

Quiet dignity marks the deep rugs further laid on special composition matting for absolute quietness in all bedrooms and halls of the second floor plan, and which contrast pleasingly with cream walls and white ceilings finished in Detroit and Casente washable kalsomine.

Cafe and Cabaret, Ballroom of Most Modern Type

Joining in the grand opening celebrations of the new Donald Hotel, and holding every promise of being a popular spot due to the wide catering experience of its owners, Trip Lee of St. Paul and William Mark of North Battleford, the new hotel will play a large share in completing the already of the building's multifarious services to patrons and the general public.

These two restaurateurs, who signed long term leases with Mr. Donald on their trip here two weeks ago, have gleaned the best ideas from their long experience in serving the public in various parts of the West and promise the newest in modern catering innovations to contribute to the North-West hotel's reputation in harmony with its distinctiveness.

Win Mark has been operating a cafe in North Battleford for some ten years, having formerly been on the service of the C.P.R. in both cooking and catering departments of that railway system's famous resort hotels. Lee has been favored with a high-class clientele in his Donald and Union cafes at St. Paul.

The large cabaret and ballroom located just east and adjoining the restaurant will also be favored with quick service through a doorway immediately next to the kitchen at banquet, tea, and parties, which will be such in volume after the grand opening, if the live interest already in evidence is any indication. The ballroom will be the rendezvous of dance enthusiasts every Saturday night at scheduled dances of 10 to 12 o'clock. Patrons of the cabaret and cafe will also find a source of delight in the paneled walls and beamed ceilings in interesting variations of the attractive effects carried out in other parts of this huge building.

Characteristic of the smart lighting effects throughout the whole hotel, Comodore wall-light fixtures bring out the full beauty and height of the room. In each of the eleven booths stunningly decorative vertical bars of Lanthierne reflect their shimmering light in large mirror panels and soften the ivory woodwork in its warm black trim.

Although the best surroundings and equipment were considered by Messrs. Mark and Lee as none too good for their future patrons, they added that, after all, appearance is not everything to a hungry man or woman. What people need is food—good food—and the new cafe, they said, will supply it.

A huge refrigerator with soda fountain and counter to serve refreshments will be located just back of a large showcase facing the entrance and merge into a lunch counter running north and south. With a table between the central section will divide two rows of booths along the walls and afford quick service from the kitchen at the rear.

The kitchen, the most important and busy place in a cafe, is also designed, to be a highly efficient one, with a specially-built electric refrigerator and tables arranged for dispatch in filling and serving orders.

A large Nook sign will take its place prominently above the cafe entrance. Messrs. Mark and Lee returned this week from a trip to the city where they chose all the necessary materials to complete the furnishing of the new cafe.

Travellers' Fast Laundry Service

Not only is our 24-hour laundry service careful and thorough, but it has also pleased many travellers and hotel guests or visitors to town by its thriftiness.

Just have our representative pick up your bundle and you will be another booster for our work, shirts ironed extra nice, and all other details of comfort in a man in his wearables carefully finished looking, after you have inspected them.

any number of stories above the present finished building. The Parkhill second storey, with a front the full 100-foot width and two rows of rooms each with outside view built into the big projecting to the back in T-shape, will easily accommodate further building above by the nature of the square flat roof.

Concern about the weather will not be for guests in the new Donald Hotel, nor, in fact, for its management. Let it rain, let it pour, on the special composition roof. Its absolute proofing against all weather beds travellers and visitors an invitation to enjoy a few hours of bridge within the warm comfort of its walls while rains are clearing up ready into famous Peace River mud.

All important contributions to modern comfort, sanitation, ventilation, drainage, will readily be noted by the guests for the extensive scale on which they are provided; plus those countless little services which round out a pleasurable stay.

Not for Ladies!

It was quite all right for Neo, famous emperor of Rome, to be in doubt as to whether his barber might make a slip—slicing or otherwise—in that fawcay outfit when everybody wanted to show somebody's neck for sword practice.

But, what times have progressed in this age of 1927 the barber is and should be trusted to give clean, fast, careful and super-expert service. And he knows that nothing can be more to spoil a man's appearance than a careless head of hair or an attention-seeking beard.

Men who look up to the times know that fashion is, beyond doubt, smartness, cleanliness and firmness, and in these matters of personal grooming, they depend on the specialized and expertly trained services to keep them looking and feeling fit—at small cost.

Seeing that the ladies read this away, we admit—in fact, are proud to say—that we keep right up to the times in ladies' fashionable culture services with equally satisfying results.

VALLEYVIEW NEWS

VALLEYVIEW, Mar. 15.—Rev. H. E. Webb, returned from Edmonton, where he was a patient at the University Hospital.

Mr. A. Stenesh, Mrs. I. Tingstad and Miss Esther Swanson returned from Grande Prairie, Saturday night. They were accompanied by Miss Mary Anderson, who has returned after an absence of over a year.

Wednesday Ladies' Sewing Circle met at the home of Mrs. O. Adolphson and worked on the quilt. They are meeting again Friday at the same place, when they expect to have it finished.

Several men are working at Jack Tingstad's just now, when he is getting out logs. He expects to have the sawmill running soon.

BODEKER-STENSETH

A quiet wedding took place in High Prairie last week when Miss Grace Stenesh, daughter of Mr. Nils Stenesh, became the bride of Mr. F. Bodeker, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Bodeker, all of Valleyview. The young couple are having their wedding reception at the home of the community hall. They will make their home in Valleyview.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bodeker, Miss Grace Stenesh and Mr. F. Bodeker, all of Valleyview, left last week for Grande Prairie, where they will be on their honeymoon.

HINTON TRAIL

Craigellachie C. C. Backs Monkmann Pass Highway

(Special to The Tribune)

HINTON TRAIL, Mar. 14.—At the regular meeting of the Hinton Trail Community Club of Hinton Trail, held at the home of Mrs. Ed Barrett the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"This club has resolved to give its whole-hearted support to the committee that is so energetically endeavoring to aid in the construction of the Monkmann Pass Highway."

On Tuesday the club ladies sponsored an impromptu dance held at the school house. It was the night of the meeting of members of the Monkmann Pass Highway Association speakers and all interested, assembled to discuss a problem very vital to us all.

The ladies served a free supper and the object of the dance, we feel, was quite well attained.

The Hinton Trail Community Club is just one more organization that can be depended upon to give its unselfish support to a very worthy cause.

ALONG THE WAPITI

ALONG THE WAPITI, Mar. 15.—The scribe having been a victim of the "flu" and not being able to get around at all is the excuse for this short column.

We were very sorry to hear that Mr. M. Sanders had the misfortune to break his leg while cutting ice. We all hope to see him around again soon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Whyte visited friends in the vicinity of the Red Willow River last week.

Mrs. Stevens started logging Monday of last week with a crew made up mostly of miners from the Wapiti mines.

This little verse has been requested publication by an Along the Wapiti reader:

On the banks of the Red Willow River
Lives a snake charmer who'd make you shiver;
Human clothes he hath adorned,
With a yellow sash adorned,
Living on the fruits of his labor,
He's the one, the Red Willow fakir!

WAPITI NEWS

WAPITI, Mar. 11.—Much sickness has been reported recently in this community. Asar Wicklund, Arne Nelson and Ed Sundin have been "flu" victims. But, cheer up folks, that "die spring" is sure on its way.

Everybody is busy hauling something these days, taking advantage of the few remaining weeks of snow. "Cutting ice while the sun shines."

Netherlands visited at the Garow place on Sunday last. They report a very enjoyable time.

Mr. Dormer arrived back on Friday's train from Calgary, where he spent the past two months.

The school reopened on Monday, March 8.

Mrs. H. Rieger claimed the following ladies at tea Tuesday afternoon: Mrs. P. Elliot, Mrs. B. Pearson and Mrs. C. Suberlin.

We are sorry to hear of Mrs. O. Borg being under the weather and hope she will soon recover.

HAZELMERE NEWS

HAZELMERE, Mar. 12.—We are glad to hear that Mrs. Tom Williams has recovered from an operation for appendicitis.

Dr. Nixon of Beaver Lodge was in this district recently attending several patients who, we are pleased to report, are on the mend.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Speed on the birth of a son.

Several more cases of measles are reported in this community.

Roads are breaking up and in places are practically impassable.

Kathleen, Helen, Gerald and Don have been skating. Helen came for a game of hockey. Tom and Lucy, before the ice goes.

SILVERWOOD

CHILD SEVERELY SCALDED
SILVERWOOD, Mar. 15.—A distressing accident occurred at the home of Mr. Pete Stanch when during snow melting operations a pail of boiling water was left unattended on the floor and the two-year-old son, Robert, fell backward into it and was severely scalded.

PLANNING FIRST AID CLASS

Cases similar to the above are frequently occurring in the district, during the winter months, especially sometimes not so severe, but nevertheless very painful to the children involved. The most lamentable part is the unnecessary suffering which occurs from the time the accident happens to the time when the patient is handed over to the doctor—in this case about two hours by road. At the next meeting members of the Community Club will be invited to take part in a First Aid class to be able to give efficient, knowledgeable assistance when necessary. Methods of raising funds for the necessary equipment should not present any difficulty in a case of this description.

DEPENDS ON NEXT DANCE

With $22.50 in the "kitty" the school children will be assured of their trip to Grande Prairie 17th—the next dance, to be held on April 9, is patronized up to expectations. The ladies who have been raising their "dough" through Lent are anticipated for this night.

FASTER THAN "HEY, PRESTO!"

With the male complement of the Plater family engaged in the erection of the barn, the "hey presto" of the magician is too slow. The barn is being built for Mr. N. Plater, on the location he recently purchased from Mr. "Bill" Alexander.

The prayers of Mr. Meen, the Rawlston, are apparently being attended to. It is staying cold, and he is likely to get back home before all the sleighing goes.

BUILDING OF HALL POSTPONED

The building of a community hall has been postponed with a view to discovering whether all channels for further discussion have been thoroughly investigated. Possibilities of further entertainment by fortnightly aeriation are not to be sneezed at.

TO ADDRESS MEETINGS IN SADDLE MOUNTAINS AREA

F. G. Pawkes of Huskies, a member of the Monksman Pass Highway Association, spent a few hours in Grande Prairie on Saturday en route to the Spirit River, Rycroft, Wainman and Hellyar to address meetings on the proposed highway.

Mr. Pawkes stated to The Tribune that the project is costing the one hundred per cent support all along the line and he was hopeful that the idea would be endorsed in the other areas.

MARCH THOUGHTS

(By Sister M. Patricia, R.P.M.)
 How softly March, forbear that slow
 Restrains those hours that wildly flow
 In haste you come now lightly go.

Speak gently, March, give us alarms
 To sleeping birds in fruit trees arms
 Be kind to little village farms.

Tread lightly, March, make not a sound
 Within the fold today I found
 Two little lambskins on the ground.

Come walking, March, behind the earth
 Is creeping with the joy of birth.

Mrs. Bennett left for a visit to the coast on Tuesday's train.
